Kia ora, Bula Vinaka, Malo Lelei, Talofa, and Pacific Greetings to all the Pacific Health Dialog Friends, new friends, readers and new readers!

We are getting there! Not so fast perhaps but not too slow either. This issue was extremely challenging in many different ways, but we have made it. I am currently working on Vol 17, Issue 2 which will be published by the end of January to early February 2012.

To our happy and committed readers – the PHD website is now available www.pacifichealthdialog.org.fj for you to log in and read past and future copies of PHD Journals.

Our special thanks goes to the Assistant Vice-Chancellor (Maori & Pasifika) Professor Sir Mason Durie for all his support and enabling the Directorate to continue publishing the Pacific Health Dialog journal. Please contact us if you have any suggestions on how to improve the content and make this journal better reading.

For this issue, the Editorial team would like to thank all the Authors for their input and contribution towards making this issue an interesting and amazing resource. It is their contributions that make Pacific Health Dialog alive and of course, our reviewers who contribute voluntarily and tirelessly.

Thank You
